Newsweek's rankings for America's Most Responsible Companies are based on a holistic view of corporate responsibility. The top 2,000 public companies by revenue with headquarters in the U.S. are considered for this recognition, then narrowed down to 500 based on publicly available key performance indicators and an independent survey.

"This award reflects our exceptional track record of doing business the right way and supports our purpose of making a difference in people's lives. It is a testament to how Oshkosh team members embrace and live our core values," said John Pfeifer, president and chief executive officer of Oshkosh Corporation. "We remain focused on being excellent corporate citizens with strong governance."

Oshkosh continuously looks for ways to lower its environmental and carbon footprints. The company has been named to the Dow Jones Sustainability World Index (DJSI) for five consecutive years, has been named one of America's Greenest and One of the World's Most Trustworthy Companies by Newsweek, is one of FORTUNE's World's Most Admired Companies and has been recognized by Ethisphere as one of the World's Most Ethical companies.
